Warburg Makes Vague Apology For Charges Against Israel, UJA

NEW YORK (P O) — James P. Warburg, well-known foreign affairs analyst, who attacked the tax-exempt status of the United Jewish Appeal and dusted off the old canard of "dual loyalties" has had some second thoughts about his charges.

He made his statements in a speech in New Haven, Conn., on Nov. 27.

HE HAS since apologized for some of his charges but has not basically retreated from his original position. In a speech in Stamford, Conn., Warburg said he was "troubled" by interpretations that his New Haven talk was "an attack on Israel."

A POST and OPINION reporter got hold of a confidential memo that proved Warburg's New Haven speech was prepared in consultation with the American Council for Judaism.

Warburg's "second thoughts" speech at Stamford is seen as an attempt to manuever out of a close link with the American Council for Judaism.

HE SAID that he had not intended to attack Israel in New Haven and that he should have "worded my address with a view to guarding against such misinterpretation."

Warburg declared: "It did not occur to me that, just because I criticized certain aspects of Zionist-Israel policy, it might be thought that I failed to recognize the many and great virtues of Israel."

"I am not and never have been hostile to Israel," Warburg stated at Stamford.

HOWEVER, the investment banker-international affairs writer doesn't retract his original statement about the UJA.

He again attacked the "refusal of the United Jewish Appeal to separate funds used for 'humanaitarian' purposes from those which are devoted to 'political activity,' despite its tax-exempt status," he said.

Answering claims that it is impractical to separate UJA funds into "humanitarian" and "political'" groups, Warburg said:

"It certainly is possible to segregate funds expended for propaganda in countries like the U. S., designed to induce Jews to emigrate to Israel or, failing that to send their children to Israel. And is certainly is possible to segregate funds contributed by or through UJA to the support of certain political parties within Israel."

Syrian Aggression Seen As Covering Internal Troubles

JERUSALEM (P-O)—The tranquility on Israel's borders since the Sinai campaign was shattered by the old familiar clatter of Syrian machine guns and mortar shells.

Political quarters in Jerusalem see the flareup as an effort by U.A.R., President Nasser, to divert opinion in Syria from mounting internal political difficulties and economic trouble.

The repeated Syrian aggression southeast of the Sea of Galilee is seen here as an outgrowth of the increased tension between Nasser and Iraqi Premier Brigadier Kassem.

The Nasser-Kassem antagonism caused the recent re-shuffling of over 300 senior Syrian officers. The officers were either forced to retire or were transferred to Egypt for pro-Iraqi sentiments and replaced by Egyptian officers.

The restiveness in the Syrian army is compounded by serious economic difficulties. Syria's economic troubles stem from the failure of the widely publicied agrarian reforms and the slicing of Syria-Iraqi trade.

Kassem's repeated remarks calling for the "liberation" of Syria from the clutches of the U.A.R. have not led to tranquility within Nasser's northern province.

Evidence that the Syrian aggressive acts are the direct outgrowth of serious internal problems is the wide publicity given the border incidents and the jet "victories" by the Damascus press, the Jerusalem Post notes.

If this were a routine attempt by Syrian peasant farmers to occupy a tiny area of Israel territory with support from the army, the incident would hardly have attracted so much attention in Syria, the Jerusalem Post comments.

The flareup which broke out into exchanges of heavy artillery fire, jet dogfights, and U.A.R. troop movements started after Syrian ploughing teams went into a demilitarized zone that had been made fertile by an Israeli kibbutz.

Other evidence given in Jerusalem circles that Syria deliberately started border tension to turn the gaze of public opinion away from its troubles:

It is not ploughing season.

Peasants do not go out to work in the middle of the day as they repeatedly did in this case.

Israel referred the question to the United Nations.

Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold was deep concerned with the U.A.R. troop movements and jet dogfights.

Israel asked the UN to negotiate the immediate withdrawal of Syrian military units from the Tawafik-Tel Kazier demilitarized zone.

ISRAEL SAID the Syrians have been using the Tawafik village as a military outpost and has poured in soldiers disguised as farmers.

In a lightening strike, which clearly showed Israel meant business, most of the houses in the village were blown up by Israeli commandos.

Premier Ben-Gurion told the Knesset that Israel will firmly oppose Syrian intrusions into the demilitarized zone. The Israelis maintain that the demilitarized zone is an integral part o ftheir country. Syria views it as a no man's land.

THE WEEK-LONG clashes were the most serious incidents on the Syria-Israel border since December, 1955. After Israeli fishermen on the Sea of Galilee were murdered by Syrian machine guns, Israel made a full-dress retaliatory raid, killing 50 and taking 29 prisoners.

Shocked K.C. Rallies Behind Synagogue After Bombing

KANSAS CITY (P-O) — It looked like any bar mitzva service. The nervous 13-year-old boy sang the Musaf, and made his speech, and became a man.

And then like at any bar mitzva service, the rabbi spoke. But what he had to say was not concerned with the portion of the week.

For his synagogue had been bombed two days before.

Rabbi Maurice Solomon told his congregation: "It is no longer a secret that there is some organized hatred in our community. As much as we dislike to admit and accept it, this sort of ugly attitude exists.

"There must be something radically wrong with the climate of our civilization that makes it possible for youngsters to worship evil."

A SHOCKED Kansas City community rallied to help the Kehilath Israel synagogue after hoodlums bombed the sanctuary.

Kansas City church and civic leaders offered their sympathy and help to Kehilath Israel in wake of the bombing. Young people of the First Church of the Nazarene, across the street from the synagogue, collected $119 to go toward the cost of repairing the damage.

Damage to the synagogue was estimated at between $10,000 and $15,000.

POLICE and FBI arrested and questioned 15 high school boys, said to be members of what they called the "Nordic Reich Youth Party" and the "National Socialist German Workers Party."

By the week's end, all were released. There was nothing definite linking them with the bombing police said. Chief of Police Bernard C. Brannon asked "patrictic citizens" for their help in tracking down the culprits.

Asked what they did at their meetings, they replied that they goosestepped and saluted each other and talked about the glory of Germany's defeated legions in World War II. Several walked around the streets in parts of Nazi uniforms.

Meanwhile, the FBI stepped up their investigation.

Those Who Fell

This mute memorial to American heroes who died fighting for Israel's independence in the War of Liberation was recently erected in the Memorial Forest in the Jerusalem Corridor.

Synagogue Bombed In Springfield, Mass.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (P-O)—A synagogue was damaged here that was the target for swastikas last month. Simon Katz, president of Temple Beth El, said the explosion shattered several windows and blasted the front doors of the temple.

A swastika was painted on the synagogue on Jan. 8, but police didn't make the incident public on request of the temple. Katz said there had been little other damage from the explosion.

Jerusalem Cops Raid Gambling Dens

JERUSALEM (P-O) —Police, armed with search warrants, began an all-out offensive against gambling dens in the city.

Thousands change hands every night over a deck of cards, police told the Jerusalem Post. "The dens are a running sore in Jerusalem. A young man goes in to stake a few pounds in a game of cards Invariably he wins at first, and loses his head. Before he knows what has happened, the tide of 'luck' has turned against him, and the game ends with him owing hundreds of pounds. He has only one way to recoup his losses. He turns to crime."

Officers said the recent rash of organized crime, specifically housebreaking and theft of vehicles, can be attributed to young men trying to get money to pay off the gamblers. The next step is smoking hashish, and within a few months, the police have a seasoned criminal on their hands, the Jerusalem Post reported.

Urges Haganah Groups To Fight Vandals

LOS ANGELES (P-O) — A Santa Monica rabbi urged Temples to organize "Haganah Committees" to deal with vandals and neo-Nazis.

Rabbi Lawrence Block, after his Temple was damaged by a burning gasoline-filled bottle was hurled into a classroom, said, "Jews must take steps to fight back with dignity," Heritage reports.

Holiday Commencement Change Urged

NEW YORK (P-O)—Columbia University was urged to "postpone or reschedule" its June 1st commencement exercise to avoid conflict with Shavuoth.

Rabbi David I. de Solapool, of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue here, headed a New York Board of Rabbis' committee which met with Dr. Grayson Kirk, Columbia University's president.

Says Air France Didn't Surrender To Boycott

TEL AVIV (P-O)—The El Al-Air France episode is nothing more than preliminary negotiations failing to bear fruit, Ya'acov Tsur, of the Israeli Foreign Ministry, said.

Girl Leaves Israeli Holding Bag; He Ends Up in French Army

SAFAD (P-O) — An Israeli boy almost found himself manning the barricades in Algiers with the French Army — all because of a girl.

Haim Smaja, 23, of Safad, fell in love with an American tourist. He was so smitten he went AWOL from his Israeli Army reserve training to see her and was given a month in jail.

BEFORE SHE left Israel, the girl wrote Smaja that she would believe he was in love with her only if he would meet her in Paris and marry her there. She would then get an American visa for him and they would live in the U. S., she told him.

Smaja borrowed the fare and went to Paris — but the girl known only as Edith was nowhere to be found.

Stranded in Paris without money and desperate, he enlisted in the French Army, the Jerusalem Post reported. His family, like other old-time Safad residents became French citizens during the Ottoman rule and never gave it up.

HE FOUND himself a member of the bereted French paratroops and about to embark for action in Algeria. Unhappy with this prospect, he asked to be sent back to Israel. His family hastily paid for the air trip home, the Jerusalem Post reported.

About the girl? There has been no word.

Electricity Comes To Dead Sea

TEL AVIV (P-O) — Israel brought electricity to the world's lowest spot — Sodom by the Sea. The electricity will serve the potash works at the Dead Sea spot.

Unscrupulous Kosher Frauds Probed

By ALFRED K. ALLAN

NEW YORK (P-O) — When you see a sign in a restaurant window saying that their meats are prepared "kosher-style," don't believe it.

Shepherd Z. Baum, chief supervisor of New York's kosher law enforcement bureau informs The POST and OPINION, "There's no such thing as kosher-style. Either the food is kosher or it isn't but style has nothing to do with it."

THE BUREAU is cracking down on kosher frauds Some 100 investigations were made last year and recently the Emerald Packing Corporation of New York was fined $500 for selling approximately 2,500 pounds of non kosher meat to which were fraudulently affixed plumbas on which the word "kosher" had been inscribed. The company's plant, Baum's investigators discovered, has not engaged in kosher slaughtering for the past seven years.

HERE ARE several other kosher frauds that Jewish consumers must be watchful of:

(1) During Passover some unscrupulous bakery owners affix "Kosher for Passover" labels to some of their food boxes. It turns out that the boxes actually are not kosher for Passover.

(2) Restaurants have been known to put boxes of matzos in their display windows to fool possible customers into thinking their food is prepared according to the Jewish dietary laws.

(3) Some stores will sell both kosher and non-kosher food without indicating the difference to the consumer.

SIXTEEN states presently have kosher laws designed to protect the consumer and inflict penalties on those found guilty of kosher frauds but New York is the only state that has an actual kosher law enforcement department where investigators probe and check on possible violations of the kosher law. "There is a great need for such bureaus throughout the country," Baum is convinced. Three cities have such bureaus — New York, Baltimore and Miami — but as Baum adds, "Often, even where the bureaus exist, they are just one man operations with hardly an adequate staff to make these necessary investigations." Baum says that there has been no opposition to the work of the bureau or to the kosher laws from any Reform or Conservative elements, although they don't follow Kashruth. "They want to protect those who do follow kosher standards just as well as anyone else," Baum claims.

How to make sure you're not cheated? "Buy from a reliable store or eat in a reliable restaurant," Baum advises. "Also when buying look for tags and plumbas and, above all, buy wisely," he said.

Doubt Ike-Eban Talks Took Place

JERUSALEM (P-O) — Israeli sources doubt whether the now-famous "meeting" between then Israeli Ambassador, Abba Eban, and President Eisenhower ever took place.

Last week at his press conference, Eisenhower said prior to the Sinai campaign he told Eban that "Jewish sympathy" in the U.S. for Israel would not sway him in his opposition to Israeli aggression.

Ike said the meeting took place early in October, 1956. Eban left Washington for Israel on Oct. 12. There was no report at the time that Eban had a meeting with the President.

TWISTED ROCKWELL SPEWS HATE IN NATION'S CAPITOL

By LILLIAN LEVY
Washington Bureau Chief

WASHINGTON (P-O) — Dial JAckson 4-5831 in the Nation's Capitol and the answering voice will respond, "Nazi headquarters."

The voice will be that of George Lincoln Rockwell, one-time plumber, who has discovered there is more money in hate-mongering than there is in cleaning sewers and drains.

"Commander" Rockwell and his "troopers" spend Saturday afternoons distributing violently anti-Semitic and anti-Negro literature in downtown Washington and and calling attention to the contents in a way deliberately calculated "to incite and provoke riot," according to Herman Edelsberg, Washington Director of B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League. Rockwell has complained that some incidents that he has provoked have not been reported in the press.

The office of the Corporation Counsel in the District of Columbia is considering issuing a warrant for the arrest of "Der Feuhrer" on grounds that he has breached the peace. There also is a strong possibility that Rockwell and followers may be guilty of treason.

In a telephone conversation this weekend, Rockwell told this reporter, who had not been identified, that in 1972 the American Nazi party will be in control of the United States and that the Jews and their friends, such as Drew Pearson, "will be thrown into the gas chambers." Rockwell boasted of having told Pearson this directly, and the columnist verified the threat.

Rockwell has said that the Nazi party he commands locally is part of an international combine. He brags about corresponding directly and regularly with "Col. Nasser" whom, he says, keeps him "well-informed on UAR activities against Jews and Israel."

ADL rates Rockwell's literary efforts as "the most extreme" of any current hate-sheets. Rockwell's "political headquarters" are in a building in Arlington, Va., that appropriately enough houses the offices of the Northern Virginia Mental Health Association.

ANTI-SEMITISM THREATENS PEACE

CHICAGO (P-O) — Rabbi Jacob J. Weinstein warned here that "as far as Germany is concerned there can be no wait and see policy. Anti-Semitism among a people who supported Hitler for 12 years is a very ominous storm warning. It threatens the peace of the world."

"It would be . . . fatal . . . to consider anti-Semitism in Germany as merely an internal disturbance," he said.

He called the recent outbursts "the collective swan song of man's emotional parochialism, made obsolete by the age of rockets. It is the last resurgent tremor of his jungle tribalism."

GERMANS MUST REMEMBER

COLGOGNE (P-O) — Dr. Joachim Prinz, president of the American Jewish Congress, said the German people must face the truth of their Nazi past.

Says Kennedy Victory Would Ease Path For Future Jewish Candidates

NEW YORK (P-O) — American Jewry feels a vital stake in Senator John Kennedy's ambitious campaign for the Presidency, writes Martin Peretz in the London Jewish Chronicle, for if the Masschusetts Catholic is successful, his triumph over religious bigotry will remove one more hurdle in the path of individual Jewish politicians seeking high office.

Only one of the 50 states has a Jewish governor and only three of 100 Senators and about a dozen of 300 members of the House are Jews. There is no Jew in the Cabinet, and while one does sit in the Supreme Court, he is commonly considered the incumbent of the Jewish seat.

PERETZ writes that "any factor that would eliminate even the subtlest obstacles to the full expression of Jewish freedom is to be welcomed. But it would be erroneous to conclude that as a result of this consideration Jews will line up in the Kennedy camp. A group of young Jewish professors and Gov. A. Ribicoff of Connecticut, it is true, are among the Senator's closest advisers, but while Jews, almost without exception, resist the injection of the religious issue into the campaign, they will decide on wholly different grounds to which candidate they do or do not take.

A STUDY on "The Political Behavior of American Jews," by Dr. Lawrence H. Fuchs, one of the Kennedy "brain trusts," indicates that the overwhelming majority of Jews may be expected to identify themselves with the most liberal politicians and causes, equating their Jewish interest with this liberalism. As long as this dynamic appears to be operative it is reasonable to believe that the young Senator from Massachusetts, looks in vain to the Jews for a groundswell of enthusiasm and support," Peretz commented.

He cited Kennedy's silence on the McCarthy hysteria and his ambivalence on school segregation and race relations.

IN THE long run, a triumph of true liberalism — even slowly and painfully achieved — will mean more to American Jewry than the dramatic election of a Catholic President, or, for that matter even of a Jewish one, declared the writer for the Jewish Chronicle.

Reform and Conservative conventions opposed religious considerations in the choice of candidates for public office. Nevertheless, big cities pick candidates from "the three I's" (the Israelites, the Italians and the Irish).

The London Jewish Chronicle writer pointed out that social attitudes of Catholic politicians that tend to alienate them from vast numbers in the populace are not shared by most Jews on such questions as planned parenthood, divorce, adoption, narcotics and sexual perversion, Jewish social welfare agencies have been among the most zealous in seeking liberalization of standing statutes.

DIGEST OF THE YIDDISH PRESS

JUDAISM COUNCIL PONDERS TIE WITH CANNANITES

By SAMUEL SILVER

Efforts to create an alliance between an anti-government Cannanite group in Israel and the American Council for Judaism seem to be noted in a letter to the Council's Rabbi Elmer Berger uncovered by the Day-Journal.

Written last autumn, the letter is said to be from Uri Avneri and talks about forming an international anti-Zionist group which would establish an "independent" policy with regard to the Arabs, Soviet Russia, etc. In his letter Avneri cites his group's need for money and warns Berger that his reply would have to go through a censor.

The Day-Journal also reproduces a memo sent out by Berger to the Council's board, asking for comments on Avneri's proposal and stating that he, Berger, would check with federal officials in Washington about the legalities of bringing Avneri to this country for talks, "which would be most helpful to us."

The paper states that the Council was supposed to have come to a decision on the matter last Nov. 13, but it has no information about what happened then. Since one offer made by Avneri to the Council seems to imply that with money he could influence Israeli public opinion, the Day-Journal asks the Council whether it really intends to interfere in the internal politics of a foreign land.

10th Yartzeit of Venerated Lubavitcher Rebbe Nears

By YEHUDA KRINSKY

NEW YORK (P-O)—The approaching tenth day of Shevat (Feb. 8) will mark the 10th Yortzeit of the great Hassidic leader, the late Lubavitcher Rebbe, Rabbi Joseph Issac Schneerson.

His passing meant the loss of one of the great Jewish leaders of the day, and to countless thousands the loss of the man in whom they always found guidance and inspiration.

His memorable self-sacrificing work in behalf of Russian Jewry is still related with the awe by the many whose lives he saved. These activities subsequently lead to his arrest in 1927. He was sentenced to death. The timely intervention of many foreign statesmen brought about his release.

He soon established a network of yeshivas and day-schools in many cities throughout the United States, which served as the groundwork for most of the Jewish day-schools now to be found throughout the country.

Israeli Yeshivas Turn Down $40,000 Gift from The Isaac Wolfson Fund

By AMOS BEN VERED

JERUSALEM (P-O)—A check for $40,000 was returned by yeshivas all over Israel because it came through the Hehal Shlomo, the "Supreme Religious Center" in Jerusalem.

The rejection focuses a growing dispute between the present trustees of Hehal Shlomo and Agudas Israel. Most of Israel's yeshivas are controlled or influenced by Agudas Israel.

This body, ever wary of central religious institutions, left the board of trustees of Hehal Shlomo when it took the additional name of Supreme Religious Center five years ago, and became the seat of the Chief Rabbinate. The Agudas Israel does not recognize the Chief Rabbinate of Israel, and its spiritual authority is a body of ultra-orthodox rabbis called the Council of Tora Sages.

Hehal Shlomo is run as a non-political body. But its lay board of trustees includes such prominent Hapoel Hamizrachi figures as Israel's Minister of the Interior, Moshe Shapiro, and Knesset Member Dr. Zerah Warhaftig. Agudas Israel has been charging for many years that Hehal Shlomo is, in fact, run by Hapoel Hamizrachi.

Understanding of Israel's Minorities Badly Needed

By CARL ALPERT

HAIFA — Ten per cent of the population of Israel is non-Jewish. It is the best interests of national unity and domestic peace that the 90 per cent know and understand the minorities in their midst. Hence, it is that the government not only encourages every project designed to promote friendly relations among the respective groups, but also initiates specific, first-hand contacts form which Israel's citizens can get to know one another.

Alpert

And thus it was that our 17-year-old daughter Miryam and a group of her classmates spent several weeks at an Arab village. They worked side by side with Arab youth, they socialized at the homes of their new Arab friends, and they participated in numerous discussions and lectures designed to broaden their understanding of the Arab way of life.

UPON THEIR return home the young Israelis were relatively proficient in the Arabic tongue, but even more important, they had for the first time come sufficiently close to these fellow-citizens of Israel to appreciate their problems and perhaps understand some of the basic philosophy of life which makes the MIRYAM'S impressions were rich and varied. Her comments ranged freely from politics and economics to domestic affairs, and it is possible here to touch lightly only upon some of them

On their first day in the Arab village, the Haifa visitors discovered a framed picture of Theodor Herzl hanging on the wall of a local office — far from any Jewish Zionist group. Who had decided to hang the picture? What was its purpose? Was it intended to give the Jewish students, or perhaps the occasional military visitor, the impression of intense loyalty to Israel? And if so, could this not be regarded as a bit of obvious hypocrisy?

THE SAME question arose, unspoken, many times during their weeks with the Arabs, and the answer which was resolved in their minds was not a quick decision but rather the result of their new knowledge and understanding of these people and their way of life. The Arab sincerely respects the strong. That which is strong and successful — is good. The military achievements of the Jews have earned such respect. The strong hand of the Israel government indicates that the state will not fall, and that it is, therefore, deserving of support.

This is not hypocrisy; it is a basic conception of life, and who fails to understand this, can not understand Arab politics. It may also serve to explain why the United States, which seeks to pursue a policy of compromise and appeasement in the Middle East, is therefore regarded as weak and undependable.

THE STANDARD of living in the Arab village in Israel is without doubt higher than anywhere else in the neighboring Arab states. It is not merely a matter of the availability of electricity or piped water — though these are benefits by no means to be minimized. Western civilization has come with a vengeance. Hardly a home in the village did not have a radio, and some of them were large, expensive pieces of furniture. Electric refrigerators Arab what he is.
are by no means scarce.

THIS WAS a Moslem village, but the weakening of religious loyalties was obvious. Many in the village did not answer the Muezzin's call to prayer. Not all fasted even on the holy days of Ramadan. Wine graced the table of the "upper classes."

THE CORNERSTONE of Arab social organization is agriculture, but the old problem of how to keep them down on the farm is present here too. The fellaheen, the Arab peasant farmer, may have a fine home, and may do very well, but he is considered to be on a lower social scale. His children have followed in his footsteps for generations — but Israel has for the first time made education compulsory for the Arab boy and girl. This would seem to be fine, but education also makes the youngsters dissatisfied with their lot. A high school graduate does not want to be a farmer. There are few jobs for the educated Arabs except as teachers. These are problems with which Israel will have to grapple.

Rising economic standards have also introduced marriage problems. Arabs requires that a prospective groom pay "mohar" to the bride's family. The going rate has risen to such an extent that Arab bachelors have threatened to go on strike. We still have not yet been able to figure out if we were complimented when an unofficial offer was made to us from one of the town's families, in behalf of their son — at IL. 4,000. Miryam said she was honored, but requested that we decline the offer.

After Miryam had returned to Haifa we were visited by two of the girls whom she had met at the village. It is hard to say how long and to what extent this personal relationship will continue, but there can be no doubt of the value of bringing Jews and Arabs closer to understanding each other.

BOOKS

Great Medieval Jews Profiled In New Book

GREAT JEWISH PERSONALITIES IN ANCIENT AND MEDIEVAL TIMES, edited by Simon Noveck, $4.95 (Farrar Straus & Cudahy).

The first volume of the B'nai B'rith Great Books Series provides immediate assurance of the high quality that will mark the five now contemplated. The introductory material to each section and each contribution by Dr. Noveck binds the subjects historically and ideologically. Much of the work is excerpted or paraphrased from previous books by the authors; every essay is authoritative and readable (though the collection is more for consultation than straight perusal).

Burstein

Here they are: the ancients, Moses (Orlinsky), David (M. J Cohen), Jeremiah (Noveck), Philo (Goodenough), and Akiba (Finkelstein); the medievalists, Saadia (Weiss-Rosmarin), Judah Halevi (Minkin), Rambam (Baron), Rashi (Blumenfield), Abravanel (Minkin), Baal Shem (Newman), and the Vilnar (Waxman).

So carefully has the book been edited, so considerable has been the consultation and other aid afforded Dr. Noveck, that the volume more than reflects credit on writers, redactor, and publisher. It elevates Judaism above rival faiths, personalities, and writings, providing in one cover evidence of the greatness of mind and soul which have shaped the religion and people of Israel.

THE SONG OF SONGS, by Hugh J. Schonfield, $0.50 (Mentor).

An original Mentor Religious Classic, this small paperbound is remarkable for the thoroughness of its treatment. Schonfield, despite his predilection for New Testament studies, among other things presents the various theories of the book's meaning, but does not favor either Jewish or Christian interpretations of the "love" idea. He seems to prefer the Fertility Cult concept. All theories of authorship and canonicity are explored, as well.

Reform Rabbi's Opinion Of 'The Tenth Man' Low

By HERMAN BROWN

NEW YORK (P-O) — "Everyone is entitled to his own opinion" was famous dramatist Paddy Chayefsky's only comment to criticism levelled at his current Broadway hit, "The Tenth Man," by Rabbi Alexander A. Steinbach, chairman of the National Jewish Book Council, and a prominent Brooklyn Reform rabbi.

Rabbi Steinbach took particular exception to the depiction of the "old shul" and the Orthodox rabbi in the play. "Some of the characters in his play are more like comic puppets than they are like real human beings one meets in the synagogue," Rabbi Steinbach told The POST and OPINION. "And even in squalid neighborhoods "shuls" have dignity. The Orthodox "shul" in the play is without dignity. And I have never seen an Orthodox rabbi such as the one in the play."

Rabbi Steinbach paid tribute to Chayefsky's "theatrical genius," and conceded that the playwright "effectively pointed to the aridity in modern life, with its confusion of prosperity and success with happiness. Chayefsky is correct in stating that society is incomplete without a spiritual element. And that there is a "dybbuk" in man's soul which must be exorcised. But the play itself does not have beauty or spirit."

Asked if he considered the play anti-Jewish, Rabbi Steinbach commented that "the play is not anti-Jewish, but it is certainly not pro-Jewish. That is its failure."

Demands Report on Navy Appeasement

NEW YORK (P-O) — Senator Kenneth B. Keating, New York Republican, said he asked the Navy for a "full report on the Navy's policy of excluding U. S. shippers who deal with Israel from bidding on contracts carrying goods through Suez."

This Week In New York

HASIDIC FESTIVITIES ARE FASCINATING FARE

Each year since 1950 the 10th day of Shevat has ever increasingly become known as a day of Hasidic festivities in New York.

This acclaim, though unofficial, is recognized by the pilgrimmage made by hundreds of Jews to the Hasidic center of the Lubavitchers in Brooklyn, where the Lubavitcher Rebbe leads the annual yortzeit celebration of the late Lubavitcher Rebbe who passed away ten years ago.

The festivities start right in the morning, when an escort of busses and private automobiles drive to the old Montifiore cemetery where the late Hasidic leader rests.

There the Lubavitcher disciples say prayers, the Rebbe himself spends well over a half a day on behalf of the thousands of Hassidim from all over the world, conveying their prayers to God.

Visitors to New York would witness something of an unusual ceremony during this day, on Monday, Feb. 8, which continues in the form of an all night Hasidic celebration, with the Rebbe reciting Hasidic philosophy and the singing of Hasidic songs.

Colorful dances of modern Israel will be performed by dance groups from 13 Jewish youth organizations at the ninth annual Israel Dance Festival to be held at Hunter College Assembly Hall, on Sunday. There will be an afternoon performance at 2:40 and one in the evening at 8 o'clock.

The Dance Festival is being held under the auspices of the American Zionist Youth Council. Guest artists will include the Oranim Zabar group of Israeli singers and instrumentalists, featuring Geula Gill and Michael Kagan. Dov Seltzer is the musical director. Direction of the entire performance will be handled by the well-known choreographer Fred Berk, assisted by Ayalah Gorenstein Kadman.

Dance groups from the following organizations will participate: B'nei Akiva, Betar, Dror-Hechalutz Hatzair, Nationad Fed. of Temple Youth, Student Zionist Organization, United Synagogue Youth, Young Judaea and Young Zionist Organization of America.

WHAT FOODS THESE MORSELS BE

BAKING IS ANSWER TO BLUSTERY FEBRUARY MORNINGS

By SARAH LIEBER

On a cold, blustery February morning baking seems to be the housewife's answer to the elements. The warmth of the oven feels good. The fragrances of the cakes and cookies fill the air. The cookie jar and the cake box are filled. And all in all, the balabosta has the feeling that she is prepared for anything, come what may.

Sarah

Many pirs, cakes and confections can be frozen very successfully Others store well in covered tins All you have to worry about is finding the most secret hiding places so the noshers of the family won't get to the storehouse before you. Below are some favorites of my family and friends. I'm sure you'll like them.

EASY CHOCOLATE SQUARES

½ cup butter or margarine
1 6-oz. package semi-sweet chocolate morsels
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs
2 cups flour
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking soda
1 cup sour milk
1 tsp. vanilla

Melt the butter and semi-sweet chocolate in the top of a double boiler over hot, but not boiling water. Stir in brown sugar at once. Remove from stove and cool. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Sift together the dry ingredients and add alternately with the sour milk. (Note: You make sour milk by placing the puice of half a lemon in a measuring cup and adding enough milk to make the amount called for. Let it stand in a warm place for a few minutes until curdling starts.) Add vanilla. Blend until the batter is smooth. Pour into a well greased pan 15 x 10 x 1 inches. Bake 25 minutes at 350 degrees. Cool then cut into 2-inch squares. May be frosted before cutting, using your favorite mocha or chocolate frosting.

BUTTERSCOTCH BARS

1 6-oz. package Butterscotch Morsels
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup light brownsugar
2 eggs
¾ cup flour
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
½ cup coarsely-chopped nuts

Melt the butterscotch morsels and the butter together in the top of a double boiler over hot, but not boiling water. Stir in sugar. Remove fro mthe heat and cool Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Sift together all dry ingredients and stir into the mixture. Add chopped nuts. Spread in a well greased pan 13 x 9 x 2 and bake 25 minutes at 350 degrees. Cut into bars while still warm.

EASY CUT COOKIES

3 tblsps. butter (no substitutes)
⅓ cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt
1 epg
1 tblsp. brandy or sherry
2 cups, minus 2 tblsps. flour

Soften the butter at room temperature. Blend with subar and ebg. Gradually stir in flour and liquid. Blend well. Knead until smooth on a lightly floured board. to ⅛-inch thickness. Using a pastry wheel or a knife cut into squares about 1½ inches in size. Bake on greased cookie sheet 13 to 15 minutes at 350 degrees. Do not brown. The cookies should be only slightly tanned in color Good with fruit(wine or other desserts.

ECONOMY RUGALACH

½ lb. margarine
½ lb. creamed-styled cottage cheese
1½ cups sifted flour
¾ cup chopped walnuts
¾ cup sugar
1 tsp. cinnamon

Have the margarine and cheese at room temperature to facilitate handling. Cream together until thoroughly blended and smooth. Stir in sifted flour. Blend. Chill in the refrigerator over night. Roll out on a lightly floured board, a small amount at a time. Cut dough into triangles. Top each with a mixture of the nuts, sugar and cinnamon. Roll up so that the point of the triangle is on top. Form into creascents by turning the two ends slightly. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet 15 to 20 minutes at 350 degrees or until a delicate brown. Other filling may be used, such as raisins, dried chopped prunes or jelly.

OATMEAL AND NUT "PORCUPINES"

1½ cups sifted flour
¾ cup sugar
½ tsp. salt
¾ cup vegetable shortening
2 oz. unsweetened chocolate, melted
¼ cup milk
1 tsp. vanilla
1½ cups raw oatmeal
⅓ cup slivered blanched almonds, or pignolia nuts

Sift together flour, sugar and salt into a mixing bowl. Add shortening, melted chocolatt, milk and vanilla in the order named. Beat until smooth. Blend in oats. Shape into 1-inch balls of dough with the hands. Insert slivered almonds or pignolia nuts to stud the cookies. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet 12 to 15 minutes at 350 degrees or until lightly browned.

PEANUT BUTTER FROZEN COOKIES

1 cup sugar
½ cup (1 stick) margarine
1 egg
1 tsp. vanilla
1¾ cup unsifted flour
¼ tsp. salt
2 tsps. baking powder
3 tblsps. vegetable shortening
3 tblsps. peanut butter
½ cup chopped nuts

Blend sugar, margarine, egg and vanilla together. Add sifted dry ingredeints. Blend until crumbly. Melt shortening and peanut butter over low heat. Blend well and add to the first mixture. Mix dough until a ball or dough is formed. Work in nut meats. Form into a long roll on waxed paper. Place in freezer compartment of the refrigerator until solid. Slice into ¼-inch thick cookies. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet 10 minutes at 350 degrees. Do not brown. Remove while warm.

ORANGE BUTTER SAUCE FOR PANCAKES, DESSERTS

1 cup sugar
2 tblsps. cornstarch
1 tsp. salt
1 cup water
2 tblsps. butter or margarine
1 can (6-oz.) frozen orange juice concentrate

Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt in a saucepan. Blend well. Stir in water and butter. Cook, stirring constantly until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat. Stir in undiluted concentrate. Blend.

They Came to Israel to Look For That Elusive Husband

By DIANE LERNER

TEL AVIV (P-O) — "Give me your tired, your homeless, all those longing not to be free," is the unspoken guiding statute that brings one out of every three tourists who cross the seas to Israel — known as the land of the sun, the citrus — and thousands of males on the loose.

And as male predominance in the population of Israel drops every year lower (unless you were to consider the frequency of males under 20, of which there is ample supply, especially among new immigrants from North Africa, or stevedores in the wharves of Haifa and Eilat), the tourists in quest of a male are on the increase.

The concierge of any hotel, the taxi driver, the shopkeeper, all know how easily do these tourists fall for flattery.

THE TOURIST from the Western hemisphere, as a rule, looks very nice and well preserved — ageless — but all too often, well above the very marriageable margin. The younger woman can take it or leave it, but for many an older woman, it is her last desperate attempt.

These fall into categories: widows, usually in their late 50's and past 60, and spinsters in mid 30's and 40's. Every third woman in this category comes with marriage in the back of her mind; for the other two-thirds, it is their main objective.

Israeli men's flattery and exaggerated attention turns many a head. A woman from abroad begins to get ideas she is something short of Marilyn Monroe and is quite convinced that had she not had to go back because she had a plane reservation or a job waiting or some other commitments, she surely would have found her "zivig," here. And so she goes home and tells all her friends what a sensational success she was in Israel and how full the country is of "eligibles" and that is how the myth grows and is perpetuated, and so more tourists come with that in mind.

WHAT SHE did not investigate was whether the man she thinks was so interested is already married (looking and flirting harms no one) or other things such as the fact that in most cases he falls far below her requirements in intellect or position.

What do American girls, for example, find so attractive about Israeli men? Says a Bostonian, who married one: they are maturer, not drip and dry mama's babies, wash and shake them out and do with them what you will. American men are immature; they look for a strong shoulder to lean on.

Israelis are aggressive and masterful; they know how to make a woman feel like one; they are also a not altogether desirable combination of Western emancipation (they think women should earn their own living to keep up with the Jones) and oriental attitudes: their women should cook, serve them, keep the house and bring them their slippers, and raise their children.

Is it love or Green Pastures? The green dollar, the lure of the little green book, or where the grass looks greener?

MANY A tourist who has been here and has returned after some sort of experience or other, has learned the hard way that most of the time it isn't her irresisible charm, but the little green book that spells travel, change and untold glories in America. Sometimes women who come on a second or third visit are inclined to be a bit less overwhelmed at male attention and may just chirp sweetly: why not marry the passport?

However, most of the time, even the most modest of females can have her head turned by just the right kind of flattery, as for example:

Lilly, the 39-year-old secretary from Brooklyn, who was a bit surprised to be turned around after and looked over by a man lunching at the same Tnuva restaurant near her hotel. When the first time she was there, he asked her if she was from England or America, she thought him extremely perceptive to have noticed her Anglo-Saxon accent in Hebrew; what she didn't know is that this type of accent is like a siren in Jerusalem at midnight.

WHEN HE began to sit at the next table to hers and invited her out, and shortly, thereafter —very shortly, if she thought about it — began to profess a strong attraction, she may even have been a bit taken aback, but could not help admiring his superb taste. Soon followed hints of everlasting love, marriage and an actual proposal of marriage. When this was repeated, she was not quite sure how it could have come about so quickly, but the Sabra way endeared her, as it filled her with qualms. She could not quite make peace with the fact that he did not have a steady job, he was a broker, he told her, and was living with an aunt.

But she overlooked all that, as talk came nearer and nearer to plans for the wedding and, of course, the trip to America, mostly about the trip and the plans for America.

LILLY HATED herself for the small doubts that would creep into her mind about her boy friend's sincerity. One day she allowed herself to voice her doubts to a friend, while at the same time she castigated herself for becoming sour and cynical.

Said her friend with Dorothy Parker, wisdom: If you want to make sure whether it's you or the trip to America, just say you have decided to make him happy by staying in Israel.

The moon was out, it was all very romantic. This time when the conversation came around to when they would get married, Lilly said: "Just as soon as you wish, dear, and ,in fact, I have decided not to leave this beautiful country."

And that was the end of that.

BUT OF COURSE, there are also occasional love matches. Sometimes Israeli girls are annoyed because these tourists are bleeding the country of a certain amount of manpower and presenting stiff competition. Let's face it, tourists have a certain glamor. Well, it's understandable.

There are a number of girls sent by their families to sit it out until they catch a man, and given a comfortable allowance to live on until then.

Take Becky, a school teacher from a well to do home in Canada. She has been through the mill of resorts since the age of 17 and almost twice that now, she comes to Israel. "Time to get married," she admits when asked what brought her. Here, the cafe sitting in Diengoff Road reminds her very much of the life she left behind, because it is 24 hours of Grossingers. She notices no one in the cafe is concentrating on what is being said to him; every eye is darting to see who comes in and goes out. All business is transacted there. No place to meet anyone, she finally realizes after nights of sitting glued to her seat and mesmerized by the milling crowds that pass.

Meanwhile, the little menahel in her school finds her very charming. No one could prove it is her material comforts. She finds he is intelligent, has a migrash, and appreciates her. Slowly a romance develops. They do plan to go abroad for a honeymoon, but their house is in Ramat Gan and a job waits to be resumed after the vacation. It does happen here —occasionally.

Drift From Moshavs Called Alarming

JERUSALEM (P-O) — Moshav movement leader, Uzzi Feinerman, said that the number of veteran settlers from old-established small holders' co-operatives forsaking moshav life had reached "alarming proportions."

WOMEN'S VIEWPOINT

KOREAN SEES FIRST JEWS

By HELEN COHEN

Would you care to know how a visitor from Mars, or more specifically, Korea, who never saw a Jew or knew anything about Judaism, reacted to his first contact with this people and their religion?

FIRST I'LL give you the bad, and then the good.

Yeung Hi Lee, a Korean journalist here for three months, as guest of the State Department, was recently in Paterson, N. J. As he explained, his only previous impression, taught by the Japanese who for 40 years had occupied their land, was that "the word Jew was a synonym for a shrew and bloodless mammonist . . . even our learned men thought of the Jew in the way he is reprsented by Shylock in the Merchant of Venice."

And these are the impressions as printed in the Temple Emanuel bulletin he came away with after having a Sabbath Eve dinner at the home of Rabbi David Panitz and attending services at Temple Emanuel:

Most significant to him was the complete absence of any intermediary between God and the created who worship Him "Among the many religions I have learned about, Judaism is the only one . . . where the worship did not center up on any idolized material."

He was impressed by the position of women in Judaism ("noble and beloved"). "It is interesting that most rituals are not obligatory upon women, since their performance might conflict with her wifely and motherly duties . . . I believe the potentialities and "raison d'etre" of men and women are different and should be preserved."

After listening to the service, he felt the Jewish religion makes the most of one of God's blessings, the vocal talent, with both cantor and congregation participating fully. "Although the cantor's position was at first unknown and incomprehensive to me, I felt as the service progressed, that my entire internal being was enchanted and that I was being led by the flow of music to some higher spiritual realm."

The few people he met he found to be "intelligent, talented, friendly and with a broad understanding of human values."

We're really not so wonderful, Mr. Lee. We have our faults and our weaknesses and some of us don't come up to the ideals we set for ourselves. But even so, we're glad you got to meet us and learn something of our faith. And maybe, from viewing Judaism through your eyes, our people can better appreciate some of the worthwhile aspects of their own religion.

LET BUSTANI SPEAK

An Arab ex-member of the Knesset is in the U.S. on a lecture tour. Rustum Bustani chose to stay in Israel during the War of Liberation, and now is a prosperous architect in Haifa.

HIS VIEWS ARE that Israel is his country, and that Arab culture should be cultivated by Israeli Arabs in the same manner as Israeli culture is flowering and developing a unique pattern of its own.

Bustani believes that Israel could lift many of the restrictions against Israeli Arabs. He has even sought government help, not forthcoming as yet, for the construction of an Arab village, patterning the center after Arab needs and wishes.

IF BUSTANI HAS been critical of the Israeli government for its attitude towards Israeli Arabs, many of whose lands have been confiscated even though they did not leave Israel, but merely moved to another sector, that is his privilege as a loyal citizen of Israel.

If he can express these views in Israel, then he most certainly should be permitted to express them in the U.S., and not be considered, as one editorial in an Anglo-Jewish poper intimated, as anti-Israel.

Let us consider Bustani spokesman for the Arab minority, and ponder his views for what strength or weaknesses they have—not condemn the man because he may oppose various activities of the Israeli government.

IN AGREEMENT

What Rabbi Robert Gordis said (P-O, Jan. 29) in an article in The Congress Weekly about Jews learning a lot from American Catholics could have been a reprint from The POST and OPINION so close are his comments to views expressed on this page from time to time over the past years.

The overriding theme of these observations is the lack of security of American Jewry, and especially of its organizational life both local and national.

When American Jews become mature, they won't need non-Jews to grace the dais of their meetings for prestige purposes, and the Jewish schools of learning will confer their honorary degrees upon worthwhile Jews, not largely on non-Jews.

EXPLANATION IS DUE

We think that there is due some explanation from the White House over the remarks (P-O, Jan. 29) to the effect that Eban used the American Jewish community to bring pressure upon the U.S. Government.

AS THE QUOTATION from Eisenhower at his press conference reads, it is not a complete thought, but the inference is plain. Eisenhower seemed to be warning Eban against using American Jewish pressure in behalf of Israel.

This is an insult to U.S. Jewry, and indicates warped understanding of the place U.S. Jews in their relationship to Israel.

EISENHOWER HAS fallen victim to the dual loyalty propaganda, and this in a Chief Executive is a great calamity.

Naturally American Jews have a great sympathy for Israel, but nothing that Israel could do would affect the loyalty of U.S. Jews to their own country.

To differ with American foreign policy is the right of every American, as long as these differences do not lead him to action that is subversive.

BUT TO CONSTRUE this difference as in any way resulting from Abba Eban or Ben-Gurion or the entire Israeli people is to betray a glaring ignorance and to show the kind of dangerous thinking which cannot be accepted.

The EDITOR'S CHAIR . . .

We've studied the words of Rabbi Sylvan D. Schwartzman, professor of education of Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, before the annual meeting of educators of American Reform Judaism, for a long time.

SYLVAN IS ONE of our favorite rabbis, and we don't know anybody with whom we'd less want to tilt lances.

Here is what he told the educators:

"A living Judaism today, requires a new look at the world and the creation of new theological formulations, new expressions of prayer, modes or worship, guides for personal living, religious symbols, definitions of the Jews' mission, and the like.

"And this is what we are going to have to do if we are to develop a vigorous meaningful Jewish religious life in the face of the greatest social and intellectual upheaval since the industrial and scientific revolution of the 19th century. To effect what this calls for is a new interpretation of Reform, a reform of Reform, doing for our own age essentially what the founders of the movement so courageously did for theirs."

Now we think that Rabbi Schwartzman's timing is wrong—Reform today isn't faced with the need for reforming. It has other more urgent tasks—such as the one for which Rabbi Schwartzman is on the HUC-JIR faculty.

BUT WHAT seems to us to be more fundamentally wrong with the concept he expresses is that he is making a major project out of what should be an ongoing process depending upon the needs and the times.

If we look back at the contributions Reform has made to American Judaism, we must recognize that they are substantial. They gave mobility and restored the process which has kept Judaism vital, that of reinterpreting Judaism for each generation, which incidentally is not a Reform concept but an Orthodox one which the Orthodox had been unable to implement for the past century and a half.

BUT IF WE make this approach into a fetish and assume that because it served its purpose at one time it should therefore be practiced continuously regardless of the need or the time, then we can't fail to be destructive.

The Orthodox feared change because it might lead to license. The Reform if they follow Rabbi Schwartzman's advice, will not be able to build for the reverse reason—they think they are being traitors to Reform because they don't change enough. They become advocates of change for change's sake.

There is a time for change and a time for consolidation.

IT IS THIS chair's view that the cardinal need today for Reform is to consolidate, and to intrench itself, which is nothing more or less than to educate Reform Jews to the values of Judaism. Once the people know about their religion, they can practice it intelligently. Change will come then, if it is needed, but it will be entirely constructive.

Advocating more change while Jews are ignorant of the content of their Judaism is to invite disaster in our behalf.

We're proud of our reportorial staff this week after persuing some of the fine "scoops" and just plain ordinary good newspaper coverage in last week's issue.

A newspaper may have fine features, top-notch columnists and a good editorial page, but the basis of a newspaper's reputation is in its reporting.

Not only was the expose of the Bermuda Hotel, the Castle Harbour, a top piece of reporting, but the question which elicited Eisenhower's disclosure that he had warned Eban not to marshall American Jews in behalf of an Israeli expansionist venture—the Sinai campaign—was put to him by our Washington Bureau Chief, Lillian Levy.

The same issue reported on the newly-formed group which will seek to make autopsies of Jewish bodies conform to Jewish law. This was exclusive with us also, as was the account of the desecration of the Jewish chapel at Fort Dix.

•

The last effort in our series of renewal letters is what we term our "Lapse Notice." It asks readers to help us make The POST and OPINION a better publication by advising what it was about the paper which disappointed them to the point where they had not yet renewed their subscription.

WE GET BACK many kinds of answers—and most just indicate that they meant to renew before this, so please reenter their subscription.

One answer from the American Council for Judaism's national headquartetrs intrigued us, because it was the pot calling the kettle black.

"WE ARE NO longer wasting money on irresponsible publications like the National Jewish POST and OPINION," was the scribble.

Let's see if the Council isn't dishonest in this assertion.

When we were in the New York office about six weeks ago, a call came from someone who wanted to buy several hundred copies of that week's issue. There was only something like a hundred on hand, and pretty soon someone came up and put down 15 cents for each copy. Later on we heard that someone had made the rounds of the newsstands in Manhattan and bought every copy of The P-O they could find.

AS IT TURNED out this was the Council for Judaism, so they aren't telling the truth when they say they are "no longer wasting money" by purchasing The POST and OPINION.

Your Name

By N. PEARLROTH

Want to know what your name means? Address your questions to Mr. Pearlroth, National Jewish POST and OPINION, Box 1633, Indianapolis 6, Indiana.

DEAR MR. PEARLROTH: I would greatly appreciate any information that you could possibly furnish me regarding my original family name of Karpovetzky. I was born in Vinnitza, Russia. My father was born in Czudnow, county of Zhitomir, Russia.—HARRY KAPLOWITZ, New York.

Pearlroth

KARPOVETZKY is a name of geographical origin. It is derived from the village of Karpowce in the district of Zhitomir. When Russian Jews first adopted permanent family names in 1804 your family was probably a generation or so removed from residing in Karpowce and took the name to commemorate the locality of their origin. The meaning of Karpowce is "a place cluttered with logs and felled trunks."

DEAR MR. PEARLROTH: My name is Aaron Judah Kligerman and I began life in the city of Novograd Volinsk, Russia. There were several Kligermans in our city and I discover a few Kligermans here. My grandfather used to sign his name in Hebrew Ish Chacam.—A. J. Kligerman, Miami.

KLIGERMAN is a Yiddish translation of the Hebrew "Hacham" (a Sage), a title which was the perquisite of a scholar deeply versed in the Talmud. Our Sephardic brethren use this title in lieu of the Ashkenazi "Rabbi". There is no doubt that your ancestor who assumed this name in 1804 was such a Hacham who may or may not have filled the position of an unofficial rabbi. The celebrated "Maggid of Brody" bore the family name of Kluger which is a German version of your name. Another celebrated rabbi took the name of Hochgelehrter (Highly Erudiate). All these surnames were tributes to the bearers' qualities and status.

Inside of Kibbutz 'Crisis' Is Reported

By CHARLES GAMZEY

They never had it so good in the kibbutzim — at least in the old established settlements.

Through the years they have amassed property, land, machinery, and in many cases, substantial factories.

Divided up among kibbutz members, it would come to between $25,000 and $40,000 for each family.

The prosperity kibbutzim have enjoyed in the past few years is vividly reflected in the standard of living of members. The kibbutznik lives in far more spacious quarters than do most city-dwelling Israelis.

SOME kibbutzim have even installed an electric refrigerator in every flat. Everyone has radios and furniture is generally top quality. Swimming pools and modern air-conditioned dining halls are common.

Kibbutz children are the only ones in Israel guaranteed a high school education. The promising students go on to Hebrew University and the Haifa Technion.

And with all this surface peace and prosperity, the kibbutz movement strangely enough is in the grip of crisis.

Yehuda Shatil writing in the Johannesburg Jewish Herald tells the revealing story of the kibbutz movement's greatest crisis.

THE KIBBUTZ, of course, was originally set to create a moneyless, propertyless community.

In the early pioneering days, when the hardy malaria-fighters lived in tents everything was simple. The propertyless ideal gradually broke down. First watches then radios became commonplace.

THE GERMAN reparations created a new rift. When members first started receiving the reparation money, kibbutzim demanded that the payments should go to the kibbutz coffers. This led to mass exits from the kibbutz life — even by veterans. The kibbutz movement then compromised and let members keep $500 for personal needs and "lending" the rest to the kibbutz.

The kibbutzim have expanded their holdings in recent years. All the older kibbutzim suffer from a critical manpower shortage. Despite this shortage, the kibbutzim have done their best to discourage new immigrants — namely "orientals" from becoming members.

RACKED BY a manpower shortage they did not realistically meet, the kibbutzim departed from the most sacred principle of the kibbutz movement — and hired outside workers.

In many kibbutzim the ratio of members versus hired workers is one member to two employees.

But the kibbutz movement's most serious problem is the youth. Even though these sabras were trained to regard the kibbutz way of life as the only proper one, a surprising number of restless second generation kibbutzniks are forsaking it and trying their luck in the cities.

Kibbutzim, have to some degree, lost their appeal for youth. Relatively few are going out to face the rigors of kibbutz life. It does not have the romantic tang, it once had when the kibbutzim were a bedrock of Israel's defense system.

HITS BIRTH CONTROL QUOTE

• Editor Jewish POST and OPINION

Outraged by your misquote of our executive secretary, Mrs. Schaefer in POST and OPINION of Jan. 8th. Mrs. Schaefer refused your reporter any information. She stated only that neither the question of birth control nor the survey had been discussed by the women's branch of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations. She did not volunteer any personal comment on the accuracy or inaccuracy of the survey figures. She was neither asked nor offered on her own any comments on the rejection of the survey by leading Orthodox rabbis. The women's branch of the UOJCA fully agrees with the statements of these rabbis.

MRS. ALAN I. EDELS
National President, Women's Branch Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations.

Reporter's Reply:

The story reporting Orthodox reaction to a survey showing that 96 per cent of American Jewish women practice birth control (P-O, Jan. 8) clearly indicated that Mrs. Schaefer's belief in the validity of the survey represented her own thinking, not that of her organization.

In eliciting Mrs. Schaefer's comments, this reporter full identified himself and the nature of his inquiry.

Mrs. Schaefer's comment, "All I know is rabbis always seem to have small families" was in reply to the following question: "Why do you think Orthodox spokesmen are taking issue with the 96 per cent figure for Jewish women while not disputing the figures for the other two religious groups?" The latter figures were 89 per cent for Protestant women and 30 per cent for Catholic women.

Conservative Jews Choose Kosher Too

• Editor Jewish POST and OPINION

I read with interest your news report about kosher foods on cruises and I wish to take exception with the remarks by Rabbi Pelcowitz and Rabbi Hollander that only Conservative and Reform Jews can afford cruises. I know that in the city of Chicago Conservative or Reform Judaism does not particularly indicate wealth. We have hundreds of Orthodox Jews who are among the top contributors to civic and religious philanthropies. I cannot vouch for the kashrut of Reform Jews but I am certainly surprised that Conservative Jews are included in the same category.

I am a member of a Conservative congregation, and, while I cannot say that all of our congregants observe kashrut, I am confident that they would prefer kosher foods on any cruises that they may make.

I think a great injustice has been perpetrated by Rabbi Pelcowitz and Rabbi Hollander to Conservative Jews who do make kashrut one of their precepts to observe.

Soloveitchik Is No 'Status Seeker'

• Editor Jewish POST and OPINION

I am rather shocked to read on the front page of your Friday, Jan. 22, 1960 issue the headline, "Joseph Soloveitchik Wants Chief Rabbinate Position." This is a terrifying and most misleading perversion of the truth.

Those of us who have had the privilege and honor to know the great Gaon of our time, Rabbi Joseph B. Soloveitchik can never associate with his revered name any lust for honor, any quest for position, for he is most certainly not to be categorized as a "status seeker." His world renown as a saintly, sagacious sage needs no special endorsements, emoluments or official recognition. Rabbi Soloveitchik has never in any way indicated that he is eager to be the Chief Rabbi of Israel; the truth rather is to the contrary. His natural shyness away from publicity and public display militate against his being a candidate for any position. It is a fact, however, that the greatest rabbi in Israel and all the most distinguished elements of the genuinely Jewish community of Israel would consider it an honor to have Rabbi Soloveitchik accept the august and exalted position of Chief Rabbi, and there is a great deal that a man of his character who combines a thorough mastery of Western culture and a most exemplary expertness in Jewish law could do for Eretz Israel and the Jewish State in its present moral and spiritual dilemma.

I write this not not so much to give advice as to what measure of man should be selected as the Chief Rabbi, but essentially to drive home the thought that Rabbi Soloveitchik never has been and never will be a seeker after any mortal honors. It is not he who seeks this universally acclaimed spiritual throne, but it is rather this great center of spiritual and moral influence that seeks him instead. I shall be grateful to you, in all fairness, if you will publish these words in order to keep the record straight.

RABBI JOSEPH S. SHUBOW
Brookline, Mass.

READER AGREES WITH FRANK'S ANALYSIS

• Editor Jewish POST and OPINION

I read M. Z. Frank's article "Zionist Leaders Live in Alice-in-Wonderland Dream World" in your issue of Jan. 22, with a great deal of interest. One must agree with his analysis and conclusions.

At this time, I want to refer specifically to the first item mentioned by Mr. Frank, namely, the unfulfilled pledge of the Zionist Organization of America fade last year, to raise a fund of $100 000 to enable settlers from the United States to finance housing in Israel. Such a project does not involve revising established Zionist procedures or principles. Here is an area where the ZOA can be of great assistance in aiding aliya, one of the cardinal Zionist principles for which it professes great sympathy. Mr. Redelheim, ZOA president, is on record pledging $100,000 to this all-important housing project.

Unfilled pledges, no matter how often repeated, won't help and only bring discredit to the ZOA. Such promises might look good in print and fool the readers, but they don't produce the funds needed. It it too much to hope the ZOA leaders will do something concrete now? Enough time has been lost.

BENJAMIN G. BROWDY
Former National President, Zionist Organization of America

SAYS ZIONIST MOVEMENT IS FAR FROM BEING DEAD

• Editor Jewish POST and OPINION

Mr. M. Z. Frank's outburst at the Zionist movement in your Jan. 22 edition produced nostalgia in me.

Fifty years ago, when I was a youngster, a member of Young Judea, I read similar expressions concerning the aims of the movement.

"Tht idea of a Jewish State is fantastic, crazy, impractical — it never could be!"

This was the opinion of the "great:" Jewish statesmen, writers, philanthropists — some of them men of renown.

In 1913 I was asked:

"Do you really believe a Jewish State can be created within the rotten Ottoman Empire? — Ridiculous!"

In 1945, this "gem" was hurled at me: "How can a small minority such as the Jews represent in Palestine conduct a democratic state in the face of a huge Arab majority? — Stop dreaming!"

And when in 1947 the fight between the Jews and Arabs began in earnest, the "wise men" spoke once more:

"Six hundred thousand Jews in Palestine can never stand up against 42 million Arabs and win! — It's suicide."

Mr. Frank, I am sure, is aware of the truism that the Zionist movement is the bearer of a prophetic message to all our people. The organization needs but deliver that message and the job gets done.

Does Mr. Frank expect the Zionist movement to finance Jewish education, or else be "Alice in Wonderland?" There are any number of agencies operating in that field. But the Zionist message goes to all the people: Reform, Orthodox, Conservative, rich, middle class and poor. The message in effect says quite plainly: "We must create more and more Hebrew (or Jewish) schools to inculcate a deeper Jewish consciousness in order that we may survive everywhere as Jews."

Let Mr. Frank speak to the board members of any institution devoted to the promotion of Jewish education and he will find at least one carrier of this message.

Once the Zionist movement decided the Jewish National Fund was needed and a body was set up to do the work. So it was with Keren Hayesoed, the United Palestine Appeal, the United Jewish Appeal, etc.

Who suggested the idea of Israeli Bond sales? — Why, a president of ZOA?

Mr. Frank "suffers" from a "disease," common to all good Zionists from which the writer of these lines is not immune. Our ardor for the cause is the "germ" that brings it on. We can never have enough registered members, we are never satisfied with the money raised, no matter how much, and we are never, never pleased with the manner in which public relation is being conducted. In a word, We constantly complain that we are not doing enough! Heaven forbid, that a cure be found for this malady!

If the advocacy of positive Jewish principles were all that is wrong with the Zionist Organization in this 12th year of the "Zionist State," then the Zionist movement deserves the active support of every living Jew.

Robert Briscoe's Daughter To Become A Nun

NEW YORK (P-O)—A daughter of Robert Briscoe, former Jewish lord mayor of Dublin, has denounced the Jewish faith and will become a nun.

This was disclosed last week by close relatives of Briscoe here.

Briscoe was Dublin's first Jewish lord mayor. He served from 1956-57. He lost re-election by one vote. After leaving office, he spoke on behalf of the United Jewish Appeal throughout this country. Briscoe has four sons who are very active in the Dublin Jewish community. He also has three daughters.

The girl, 22, was described by Briscoe's relatives as being "always very remote from anything Jewish."

Letters from the former lord mayor that reached New York last week said he was "very much disturbed with what took place" and he "can't do anything about it."

Pan Am General Dynamics Deny Owning Spa

NEW YORK (P-O) — Pan American Airways and General Dynamics denied ownership in the bias-ridden Castle Harbour hotel in Bermuda.

A General Dynamics spokesman said, "We don't own any hotel in Bermuda. We never owned Castle Harbour."

A Pan American spokesman said, "We have no knowledge about Castle Harbour, and don't have anything to do with this resort."

The POST and OPINION disclosed last week that hotel representative, William P. Wolfe, was given three years to "rid" the hotel in Tucker's Town, Bermuda of its Jewish clientele.

Prior to the new management of the Castle Harbour, the well-known hotel had been frequented by Jewish guests.

Denies Personal Bias Against Segal
